Sustainable Fundreports - Transparency, Comparability & Measurability

More and more investors complain about the diverse use of the term sustainability as well as the complexity and heterogeneity of the concepts behind the word. As a consequence, the focus has increasingly changed to the central question of how to create transparency in this diverse environment and how sustainability can be made more measurable – since sustainable doesn't simply mean sustainable.

yourSRI is actively addressing the market's need for transparency and has therefore joined forces with one of the leading companies worldwide in the analysis of sustainable investment funds, with more than 15 years of experience.

In line with this, customers benefit from an indepth understanding of the underlying investments and are able to access Sustainable Fundreports of nearly 400 investment products. The objectives of such a Fundreport are:

Sustainable Fundreports

Screening, Analysis and Valuation

Transparency

It can be challenging to understand the key characteristics of different SRI funds, be it because of the many different ways to describe them or due to the frequent lack of proper disclosure. yourSRI Sustainability Fundreports provide greater insight in an easily understandable way to facilitate the choice of an appropriate product. And it is essential to understand what underlies an SRI product to establish trust.

Comparability

Sustainable Investing is not a strict concept: Fund managers have different approaches to it. Our unifying rating methodology lays the basis for the comparability of SRI funds - allowing sound investment decisions to be made. To identify the product that suits your needs out of the huge number of available SRI funds, you can use our tools for an efficient and sound decision.

Measurability

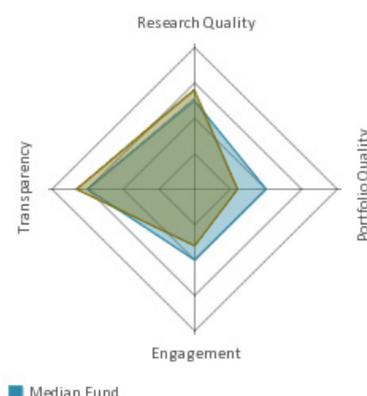

How can the quality of a fund's sustainability strategy be quantified? This requires a methodology that allows a consistent translation of a large set of non-financial indicators into a final sustainability score. Such a methodology has to be transparent, complete and comprehensive.

The yourSRI Sustainable Fundreports provided by our partner offer a thorough and fair evaluation of funds in line with those objectives. The resulting explicit and comprehensive fact sheet is basis for clear investment decisions and is much valued by finance professionals, fund management companies and private investors who require a transparent and comparable analysis.
